RUSSIANS ROUTED AFTER COLOSSAL

JAPS WIN WORLD'S GREATEST BATTLE!

LONDON, Sept. 1.—The Japanese have won the great battle at Liao-Yang. General Kuropatkin's retreat to Mukden has been cut off. The slaughter on both sides has been colossal.

NAP PATTERSON BAIL IS $20,000

GRAPE VINES SAVED A GIRL

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—In the absence of any opposition from District Attorney Jerome, Justice Ames, sitting in Supreme Court, part two, today granted the application of Lawyer Abraham Levy, of counsel for Nap Patterson, who is under indictment for the murder of Cesar Young, to a writ of habeas corpus. The amount of bail was fixed at $20,000.

To the steady vines of a grape arbor of Annie Murray, an orphan, sixteen years old, owes her life today. While watching a wedding celebration from a window of her aunt's house on the third floor of the house at No. 139 D street, the girl looked out too far and pitched headlong from the window. In falling she turned completely over. Instead of falling on the stone pavement in the rear yard she landed in the lap of a grape arbor.

LONDON, Sept. 1.—A Tokio dispatch says that the Russian right and centre defending Liao-Yang are in full retreat this (Thursday) afternoon, with the Japanese in hot pursuit.

The latest news indicates that the Japanese have won a tremendous victory. General Kuroki has crossed the Taitse River, cutting off Kuropatkin's retreat. Both the Russian flanks have been turned.

Yesterday's battle continued until midnight with frightful slaughter. The number killed and wounded up to last night is estimated at 39,000 on both sides. To-day's casualties have been enormous.

Kuropatkin has given an order to fall back on the main works. Owing to the pressure of the Japs on both flanks, this movement could not be accomplished. It is believed that the great battle will end in a Russian rout.

News of this disaster to the Russians after three days of desperate fighting in the greatest battle in the world's history comes from both St. Petersburg and Tokio, and is regarded as official. The Russian capital has received news of Kuroki's success, and also that 10,000 Japanese are advancing on Mukden from the northeast.

Many Russian Officers Slain.

There is grave fear in the Russian capital that Kuropatkin's army has been cut to pieces. Although the Russian officials would not give out the news, it was known to them last night that the Japanese had won an immense advantage when the fighting ended at midnight and both sides bivouacked on their arms.

The Russians have lost a number of valued officers. General Kurovsky, commanding a portion of the Russian fighting line, was seriously and perhaps fatally wounded. General Skakelberg, in command of the First Siberian Corps, was severely wounded, but remained on the field.

The great battle was renewed shortly after 6 o'clock this morning, when the Japanese artillery began shelling the Russian lines. It continued with all the ferocity which marked the fighting of yesterday and last night. Until noon the tide of battle ebbed and flowed. Then the advantage which the Japs had gained began to tell.

The armies of General Oku and Nodzu pressed in on the Russian defences from the south and southwest. Kuroki's great force to the northeast did terrible execution on the Russian left flank. A Japanese force to the northwest of Liao-Yang engaged the Russian right flank, practically cutting off its retreat to the main defences of the city.

Little by little the Russians gave way before the terrible hail of shells and shrapnel from the Japanese artillery; the destructive rifle fire and the repeated bayonet charges. The Japanese showed their usual reckless bravery, chasing across exposed plains, storming hills that were literally shelled by Russian artillery fire, and maintaining every advantage, in spite of the furious efforts of the Russians to repel them.

This afternoon Tokio received the news that the Russian lines had been broken; that Kuropatkin's soldiers were fleeing and that the Japanese were in close pursuit. Military experts here believe that by to-night the great battle of Liao-Yang, the decisive engagement of the war, and the greatest battle in the annals of nations, will have been won by Japan.

39,000 Killed in First Two Days' Fighting.

LONDON, Sept. 1.—The battle of Liao-Yang, between half a million soldiers of the Mikado and the Czar, raged to-day for the third day. The total killed and wounded on both sides in the fighting of the first two days aggregated 39,000 men.

One estimate places the Jap loss at only 12,000 men. It is believed, however, that their loss was nearly equalled by the Russian casualties. The Russians have had thirty-five cannon destroyed, sixteen cannon, 40,000 rifles and 200 wagons captured and 200 wagons destroyed.

Russian parties are driven back with bayonet charges. Jap advances to gain foothold within the Russian defences are repulsed with terrible slaughter. The sub

After an official investigation of the South Boston trolley wreck by the Boston Elevated Railway Company, it was announced today that the wreck, in which more than a score of persons were seriously hurt, was caused by a stone which had been placed on the track.

The accident was caused in a way which is being investigated by the Boston Elevated Railway Company. It is believed that a stone or some such obstruction had been placed on the track, and that the trolley, when it struck it, was thrown off its wheels and plunged over the bank.

The Boston Elevated Railway Company kept a watchful eye on the street, and when the street had been recently washed and the tracks were being repaired, it was in charge of Committee John Lusk, who was in charge of the work. It is believed that the stone was placed on the track by some one who was not authorized to do so.

The accident occurred directly in front of Newman street. The street is being repaired, and the trolley was passing over the new tracks when it struck the stone. The trolley was thrown off its wheels and plunged over the bank, causing the deaths of several people and the injuries of many others.

The investigation is being conducted by the Boston Elevated Railway Company. It is believed that the stone was placed on the track by some one who was not authorized to do so. The company is trying to find out who did it and what the motive was. It is also trying to find out how the accident could have been prevented.

BOSTON STATE'S GIFT TO IRISH PARTY $10,000

Massachusetts Led All in Offerings at United League Convention.

REDEMPTION'S STIRRING TALK

By Boston American Leased Wire.
NEW YORK, Sept. 1. The second annual convention of the United Irish League of America has closed in a blaze of enthusiasm. The sum of $10,000 has been pledged to the Irish parliamentary party for further the cause of Irish home rule. Massachusetts leads the States with a contribution of $1,000.

The principal speaker at the closing session was John E. Redmond. His report of the progress made during the past year in the fight for home rule aroused great enthusiasm, and his announcement that the cause of self-government had made greater progress since the Boston convention two years ago than in fifteen years before was received with joy.

President Finerty stated that $10,000 had been contributed to the cause of the United Irish League by the United League of America. He also stated that the United League of America had received a letter from the British government offering to purchase the Irish land for the purpose of the United League of America.

John F. Ryan, of Philadelphia, in speaking on the proposition to increase the dues of the members of the United League of America, declared that New York State had not yet contributed to the cause of the United League of America.

WHOLE WORLD OF SPORTS COVERED FOR THE BOSTON AMERICAN BY ITS CORPS OF EXPERTS

BARBARY DAY FOR THE FAITHFUL FANS

Another slight change appears in the American League standing today. This time the tie between the Athletics and the White Sox is broken, and the former jump ahead. Boston won the final game from Detroit, while the Highlanders trimmed the Indians in the last season. There is a wider margin between the five leading clubs than there was last week. Fifty-five points now separate Boston and Cleveland. New York is still one game behind the Champs. Cleveland is anxious to get ahead of Chicago, and it will try hard to land both games against the Champs today. If they succeed, Boston will again drop to second place.

Tanny's Puzzling Wing.
Joe Tannhill, with his south side batting gun all primed for the latest, caused some confusion and pleasant trouble in the batting order of the Athletics.

For one of the hitting battlers, Norman Gibson, the shortstop, who has been in the batting order for some time, was not in the batting order for some time.

No Advice Needed.

BILLY COUGHLIN OF THE TIGERS

That the Tigers made no mistake buying Billy Coughlin's release from the Senators has been proved by his work for Bobby Lowe's team here in the last week. Coughlin is an earnest, consistent player, always ready to get after the ball no matter how hot it comes toward him. This photo was taken by a BOSTON AMERICAN camera man at the Huntington avenue grounds.

DO YOU LIKE THIS COWBOY SKIRT?

By Beatrice Fairfax

EITHER MRS. ROOSEVELT OR MRS. PARKER IS IN EVERY WAY QUALIFIED FOR THE POSITION OF THE FIRST WOMAN IN THE LAND

ONE of these women will preside as mistress of the White House during the next administration. Mrs. Roosevelt has already filled that position for three years. Her tact and gracious cordiality have made her very popular. She has filled her duties with dignity and a ready appreciation of what her position demanded. Mrs. Parker, who in her stead it is safe to assume that she will be equally competent. In both faces there lies the expression that belongs to the woman who makes life worth living by having some particular interest. There is nothing dull about these faces. They are alert, keen, receptive. I will wager that neither woman is content to sit back and feel that she knows all there is to learn.

It is the quality of always being willing to learn that fits women to take the leading place in society, business or any walk in life.

Another quality that she must possess is cheerfulness. She must meet friends and foes with a ready smile, and smile when the foe, unless he be a very grumpy, ungracious foe, will be disarmed by her kindly tact and brightness.

A woman of this type is the greatest possible assistance to her husband. Both these clever women, Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Parker, have been the best of helpmates.

When a man rises to a high position in public life there is generally some splendid woman supporting him on to do his best, encouraging him when the load seems too heavy, treating his least efforts, sympathizing with his failures. It is a grand thing to be able to do as much for a fellow-being as the woman can do who is her husband's inspiration.

One striking resemblance between these two women is that they both look remarkably young for their age. Through they are the mothers of grown children—Mrs. Parker, in fact, a grandmother—they both have the look of youth which only belongs to women who keep themselves in touch with the world and their fellow-creatures.

Nothing else a woman so quickly as getting into a rut and losing interest in her surroundings.

The woman who presides over her own little home circle with cheerfulness and dignity is quite as commendable as she who holds a more public position, but it is well to bear in mind that the woman who is successful in presiding over an establishment such as the White House, is equally successful when she holds sway in a much simpler home.

READY SILVER POLISH

ANY excellent silver polish to be made at home consists of half a pound of two ounces of spirits of turpentine, one ounce of spirits of wine, half an ounce of spirits of vinegar, with one tablespoonful of the essence of lemon.

WHEN DRESSMAKING

WHEN dressmaking or much sewing is done in the house it is a great convenience to have a sewing machine spread over the carpet to prevent delicate fabrics from being soiled with the dirt of the floor. It is a good idea to have a small table or stand to hold the machine, which should be adjusted to the machine with a revolute table.

BEDROOM KNOCKERS

NO housewife's knuckles need be sore in the future from knocking at bedroom doors, for quiet and beautiful bedroom knockers are now provided for the benefit of early risers who have to be called in the morning. These knockers are of English origin and are copied from the famous Dutch knockers which date back to Norman times.

CAROLINA CAKE

CURIOUS one cupful of butter with two cups of sugar, add half a cupful of milk. Mix thoroughly and beat with the egg beater. Bake in a loaf.

HOW TO KEEP FRUIT

COVER every jar of fruit with a paper cap, not only to preserve the fruit by keeping it in the dark, but to avoid the risk of insects on the cover, making it so unpleasant to handle next winter. Lamp glass is slipped over them as soon as they are polished.

Married to Mystery

Boston American's Thrilling Story of Present Day Life in Boston

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters.

Kathleen Veard, a poor girl, supported an invalid mother, a husband in a foreign land, and a young son. She was a woman of great strength and courage. She had been married to a man who was a great success in business, but who had died. She was now a widow, and she was struggling to support her family. She was a woman of great strength and courage. Chapter XXX—Continued.

"These questions I cannot answer," said the man, his only words relating to her. "I can only tell you that I have spoken the truth. You know, I take it, that Adeline is the property of Mr. Berrade. Are you not aware of this?"

Chapter XXXI.

The morning was bright and clear. The sun was shining brightly. The birds were singing. The flowers were blooming. The world was full of life and joy. The man and woman were walking together, hand in hand, through the park. They were both smiling and looking at each other with love and affection.

Chapter XXXII.

Locked in the Berrade Vault. The man and woman were standing in front of a large, dark, and imposing building. The man was looking at the woman with a serious expression. The woman was looking at the man with a determined expression. They were both looking at each other with a sense of urgency and importance.

Chapter XXXIII.

The man and woman were walking through a dark and narrow passage. The man was holding a lantern, and the woman was holding a small object in her hand. They were both looking at each other with a sense of urgency and importance. The man was saying something to the woman, and she was nodding her head.

New skirt about which all Paris is talking.

"COWBOY skirt, the rage in Paris." This gown, exhibited at the opening of the National Dressmakers' Association in New York, may be the "rage in Paris," but it is not an improvement on the "cowboy skirt." It is a skirt that is made of a material that is not suitable for a skirt. It is a skirt that is made of a material that is not suitable for a skirt. No One Is All Bad; No One Is All Good

By Rev. Thomas B. Gregory

THIS is not to be a sermon, but a story. It is a story of a man and a woman who are both good and bad. It is a story of a man and a woman who are both good and bad. It is a story of a man and a woman who are both good and bad. It is a story of a man and a woman who are both good and bad. It is a story of a man and a woman who are both good and bad.
